Moving Forward...

NWC students browse through the variety of books available at the campus bookstore.

It is amazing how much stuff can be packed into a trunk!

There's plenty more where that came from! Freshman Carl Bliss prays, "Please--not third floor!"

Time to sail the winds ... Discover new lands ...

Anticipation ran high as new and returning students entered the gates of Northwestern for 1994-95 school year. Between excited greetings and wistful farewells, students began the hectic job of moving into the dorms. Now, for the next nine months, the residences will be affectionately known to many NWC students as "home."

A variety of thoughts and feelings were experienced by students during the first week of school. New student, Christy Sunvold, praised NWC for keeping everyone busy during orientation week. "It really helped keep me from getting homesick. The college did a great job of providing opportunities for people to meet and learn about each other."

Returning student, Chris Soderstrom described the first week as "busy, eventful, and crazed." He exclaimed, "The new food program is great. Now they just need to get better mattresses." All in all, the first week of school was a kick-off to an exciting new year.

Moving On . . . Moving In!!!

The friendly and helpful faces of the welcoming committee greet new students entering campus for the first time.

Snatching a lasting hug, Katie Hartley bids her family a tearful good-bye.

Only twenty-three more trips to go! Alumnus Luke Sonner and his cousin and new student, Stephanie Miller cheerfully carry things to the dorm.

Climb beyond the place you've always been.

A World of Variety

Erik Jacobson eagerly awaits to make his fashion debut at the variety show.

The startled Sawall sisters stroll to school on a sunny September afternoon.

Student Development's Dorothy Snyder joins in on the Variety show fun.

Rock-a-bye Dayna Anderson in Nazareth Hall. When the bell rings, classes will call.

Evidence of the warm and friendly atmosphere at NWC is expressed by Michelle Linson and Dawn Buller.

Together

Different cultures
Varied personalities unable to keep us apart
if we are willing just to reach out
... to give from our hearts!

In Christ, a freedom exists drop all masks to be ourselves learning that friendship involves both sacrifice and risk.

"He is before all things and in Him all things
hold together."
It is with that promise
from His book that will prompt us to take a second look at all the blessings God sends
Knowing our efforts aren't in vain,
... we will eternally be friends.

Around the World in One Summer:

Students Making an Impact

"I found through my trip to Mexico that missions is more than an experience, but a lifestyle to be lived out each day!" Timothy Cave

Where we served:

China
Columbia
Great Britain
San Pedro Sula, Honduras
Mexico
Papua New Guinea
Panama
Russia
Trinidad
Ukraine
California, United States

While taking a ride to a mountain stream in the jungles of Panama, this thought was impressed on Marty O' Lena. "It's difficult to inspire others to accomplish what you have not been willing to try yourself."

"I have always been fascinated with tribal peoples. I used to think that we should tell them of Christ, but leave them alone as much as possible -- thinking that their simple way of life was glorious. Last summer in Papua New Guinea, in a remote mountain area, I saw a woman looking through a Jehovah Witness' Watch Tower magazine. It was then that I realized it was no longer an option for these people to remain unaffected and uneducated about the outside world. The question has now become: Who will reach these people first and what message will they hear? I pray that it will be the truth of Christ, not the lies of Satan."

-- Steve George

Bridging Culture

Tony Raymond and Leslie Werner traveled into China to teach English. The Chinese people exposed them to their old, majestic culture that has left an impression on both of their hearts. Tony and Leslie were challenged to see the ways in which God could use them as they taught and befriended this searching people group.

After his two month adventure Tony recalled, "I remember a strong connection with my students - a bridge of kinship that extended across all political, religious and economic lines. Together, we shared laughter and tears, dreams and crushed hopes over a country torn between traditonal and contemporary cultures."

THE NEW CHINA: Born upon the shoulders of yesterday

The Honduras team's mission for three weeks this summer was to serve God through evangelism and construction. They were able to go into public and Christian schools to present Christ through drama and puppets. They also built a classroom for a church and school that accepted and surrounded them with God's love which pervades all cultural, racial, and lingual boundaries.

How Shall They Hear?

Every Northwestern student is considered a member of Student Missions Fellowship. The purpose of SMF is to challenge and encourage students in the area of missions. There are many different avenues for students to be involved. Those that have gone, given or prayed for missions are a part of God's work of reaching souls.

As Christians, God desires each one of us to have a willing heart to be used as His tool for spreading the Gospel. He has not created every one of us for the purpose of going; rather, some are called to stay back and support those who have gone. We all have the responsibility to pray and seek God's plan for our lives.

If we humbly ask God for direction and unselfishly seek His will, then we must be prepared for Him to use us. By putting the needs of others before our own we make ourselves available for God's use. Our lives are no longer our own. We must first take our eyes off ourselves in order to focus on what God wants us to do in the lives of others.

Color Our World

A rainbow of color spreads across the world on this chart representing the support raised for SMF. Each Friday's chapel offering is posted outside the Nazareth Cafe'. The weekly progress shown here is prior to Thanksgiving Break. Our college family gives thanks, looking forward to fulfilling our super faith goal of $20,000. This may appear to be a large mountain, but God's Word tells us that faith can move mountains. We believe that with this support and our prayers, NWC student missionaries will be sent around the world.

"Everyone who calls on the name of the Lord will be saved. How, then, can they call on the one they have not believed in? And how can they believe in the one of whom they have not heard? And how can they hear without someone preaching to them? And how can they preach unless they are sent? As it is written, 'How beautiful are the feet of those who bring good news!'" Romans 10: 13-15

MKs Reach Out to One Another

"Therefore encourage one another and build each other up, just as in fact you are doing." 1 Thessalonians 5:11.

The Missionary Kids organization is dedicated to providing support and encouragement for NWC's MKs. This group began last year in order to share and learn about each other's experiences in their home countries. The forty MK members find help adjusting to new surroundings through this "family" away from their real family.

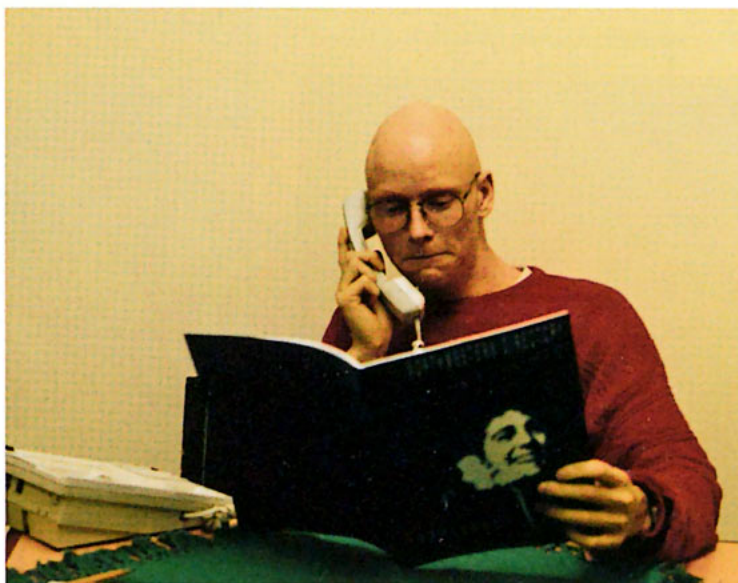

Michelle Jones, an MK from Taiwan and the chair of MKs, explained the mission of this organization. She said, "We want to stand together as a group and let other MKs know we are here for support." In addition to their weekly meetings and special get-togethers, this fall they went to a Twin Cities area MK retreat. They were able to meet other college MKs and share in fun and fellowship. Our NWC MKs had the opportunity to lead the retreat in worship.

My Fair Lady

My Fair Lady may refer specifically to Eliza Doolittle, but it also could be descriptive of director Patsy Miller and the rest of the female cast; of course, one cannot overlook the "Fair Gentlemen" involved in the musical as well.

A dedicated cast numbering thirty-six and a large crew worked under the skillful hands of Patsy Miller and Dr. Port. Jonathan Thompson (Alfred P. Doolittle) said in an interview, "Patsy is great -- a wonderful motivator."

One thing that made this cast so special was that it strived to keep God at the center of the entire production. A couple of ways that they accomplished this was through the daily devotions given before practices and productions and the establishment of prayer partners. These proved to be an essential part to the process of putting the play together. Patsy Miller said, "We are a family and families operate that way. If you are vulnerable with your friends and share your problems, you can work through them as a team."

Homecoming—Country Style!

Lon Bjornrud interviews Jay Safford, who in turn thanks the pepfest crowd for their support in his new concoction for the football team.

"What? No seconds?" Chris Nathan, Brian Anderson and Greg Bixel join in the fun at the NWSA barbeque.

"People Get Ready!" Margaret Becker thrills the student body with her variety of songs.

In keeping with the "Country Fair" theme, decorative balloons are planted along the drive coming into NWC.

Presenting... Miss Debbie Giovenco, Miss Northwestern 1994

Homecoming this year took on a country flair as faculty and students alike were kept busy throughout the week. The week started out strong with a pizza war and NWSA barbecue. A concert of prayer, JAM, and a pep fest kept the mood lively. The week's finale was the country fair complete with clowns, games, and a hot air balloon. Margaret Becker's soulful concert brought the Homecoming week to an end.

One of the major highlights of the 1994 NWC Homecoming week was the coronation of Miss Northwestern. Debbie Giovenco was selected from a field of six candidates. Debbie is a senior majoring in Communications. As Miss Northwestern, she will represent the college by speaking at various functions throughout the year. Concerning this honor, Debbie says, "I want this role to reinforce my desire to talk to people, to care about them and be able to identify with them. I've been praying that I'll be open to whatever happens this year; I have a peace." Debbie's smile and bubbly personality were some of the many joys to see during a great 1994 Homecoming.

Smiling radiantly, Debbie Giovenco was named Miss Northwestern 1994-95. "Thank you" seemed the only appropriate response to express her deep feelings of honor, joy and gratitude.

Tom duBois jokes around at the Miss Northwestern Coronation.

Eagle Sports on Homecoming Weekend Thrill Fans

The Eagles sparked excitement during Homecoming festivities with three big wins. The men's soccer team defeated DMLC 4-2, while the women's volleyball team crushed Pillsbury 3-0, and the football team tackled DMLC 28-12. The games were enjoyed by all, including many alumni. Students cheered on their Eagles in all three competitions. Student fan, Eric Quinn sums up his homecoming experience by saying, "Sometimes we are filled with the spirit, and sometimes we are just caught up in it."

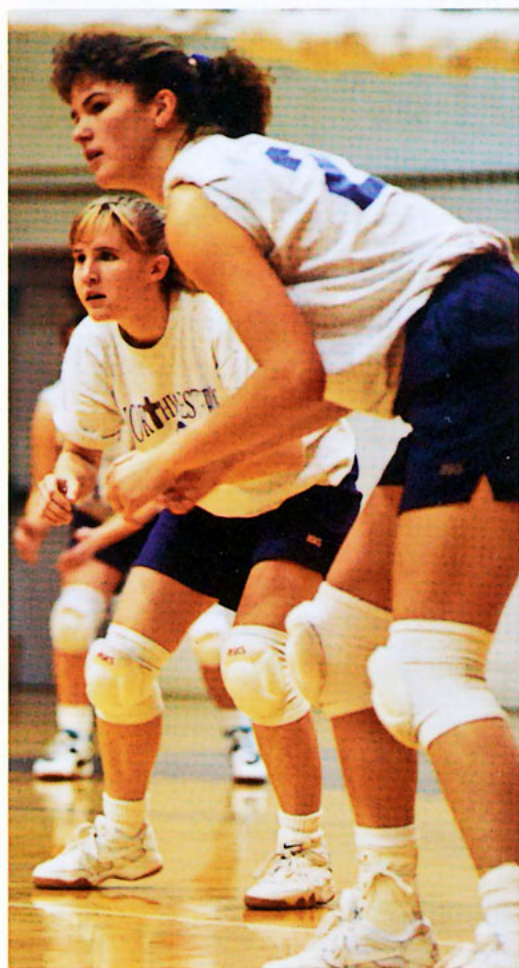

Fans add spirit as well as color to the football game.

Volleyball players JoAnna Michalski and Becky Gotteberg anticipate the Pillsbury serve.

Football players celebrate a key play made against Homecoming rival DMLC.

GRADUATES

"Therefore, my dear brothers, stand firm. Let nothing move you. Always give yourselves fully to the work of the Lord, because you know that your labor in the Lord is not in vain."

-- 1 Corinthians 15:58

The climb through college is challenging. Realizing this, graduates stand firm by relying on God's strength. They celebrate the accomplishment of this goal, awed at the unbelievable view of what lies ahead in God's plan. Here, Justin Irving takes the challenge of climbing this rockface at Taylors Falls.

We come from different states and nations with our own unique cultures and backgrounds. Yet we are all blended together to form a group: the Northwestern student body. For a few short years we live and grow together, and friendships are built that will last a lifetime. We are briefly touched by special moments that make lasting impressions on our hearts.

There is no telling what experiences God has in store for our lives. But the one thing we do know through our years of change is God's love. He freely gives us this love so that we may be encouraged and strengthened and so that we may pass His love on to the other people who cross our lives' paths.

Whether as individuals or together as a student body, because of God's love in our hearts we can powerfully impact the lives of those around us, near or far. When the love He gives is the love we share, we truly can see the world from here!

Making a Difference in Our Lives:

The Northwestern Student Association (NWSA) along with Resident Directors (RD's) and Resident Assistants (RA's) lead important roles in the lives of students. Representing the student body in areas of interest and concern, the NWSA bring issues before Student Development and the Vice President of College Affairs, Dr. David Erickson. Junior Doug Whittaker, 1994-95 Student Body President, acts as Chief Administrator of the NWSA and represents students to the College board. Senior Mark Roelofs is the NWSA Vice President. He oversees on-campus activities such as blood drives and the winter Youth Conference. The RA's, under RD supervision, hold leadership positions, and are available to students living on campus for prayer support, encouragement and a listening ear. These student leaders work hard as they strive to make a difference for the student body.

"It has been an honor to serve the students of NWC as Student Body President. I have been tested greatly in trying to balance my personal family life with my academics and my responsibilities as student leader. This challenge has forced me to lean on our Lord more than ever. As a result, I have grown to a much higher level in my Christian walk."

Owning a Piece of the Rock

Romance, athletic fervor, patriotism, creative expression--all these and more are posted on the "rock" at Northwestern. The rock was unearthed near the entrance road to the student residences and left on top of the ground where it was found. Later, due to its unusual popularity among the students and the upgrading of roads, it was moved to its present location and cemented there. Sophomore Katie Hartley commented, "The rock always makes me smile. It's fun to walk by and see what new message is painted on it." The rock has become a sentimental keepsake for both students and alumni alike.

The infamous campus rock was used to advertise the importance of the annual Blood Drive.

The beloved rock was the victim of yet another Minnesota winter prank.

One of the most popular uses for the legendary rock is to announce engagements.

Moyer Mania

The spirit of Moyer is captured by the festivities of the day.

The Moyer residence celebrated the various holidays in their 1994 Open House. In following the "Holidaze" theme, each quad decorated for a different holiday. Christmas, Thanksgiving, Easter, St. Patrick's Day, New Year's Day, St. Urhost Day, spring break, Fourth of July, Cinco de Mayo, Happy Birthday, and Valentine's Day were all represented.

Camille Oppold, a junior who lives in Moyer, commented that it was great to have so many people visit "our turf."

The open house is a fun way for students to visit and fellowship. Approximately 200 people attended the open house and enjoyed the food, fun and games that the residents had to offer.

Need we say more? The guys would agree that Moyer Open House was a great success.

Alethea Booth and Chastiti French portray scenes of the first Thanksgiving.

Many students decorated their doors and halls for judging. From candy canes to manger scenes, both traditional and spiritual ideas were creatively sought out. To brighten the spirit, hallways beamed with strings of lights. The pleasant aroma of hot apple cider complimented the cookies, jello, and other treats. Throughout the activities of the evening, the spirit of the campus overwhelmed many with delight.

A New Approach to Dining

Ben Andrew's gleeful excitement over the soda machines is evident in the new Café Nazareth.

Keila Campos samples the variety of food at the salad bar.

Old colors, freshly prepared food, decorated baskets, and creative displays have overwhelmed the newly remodeled cafeteria at Northwestern. The "average cafeteria" has been transformed into Café Nazareth--with a restaurant style atmosphere. The changes in quality of food and format are a result of Bon Appétit--the new professional food service.

The goal of this new addition to Northwestern is to provide students with a pleasant atmosphere and freshly prepared food. Bon Appétit is willing to get involved personally with the students by listening to their comments and suggestions. Several students have joined the Café Nazareth staff.

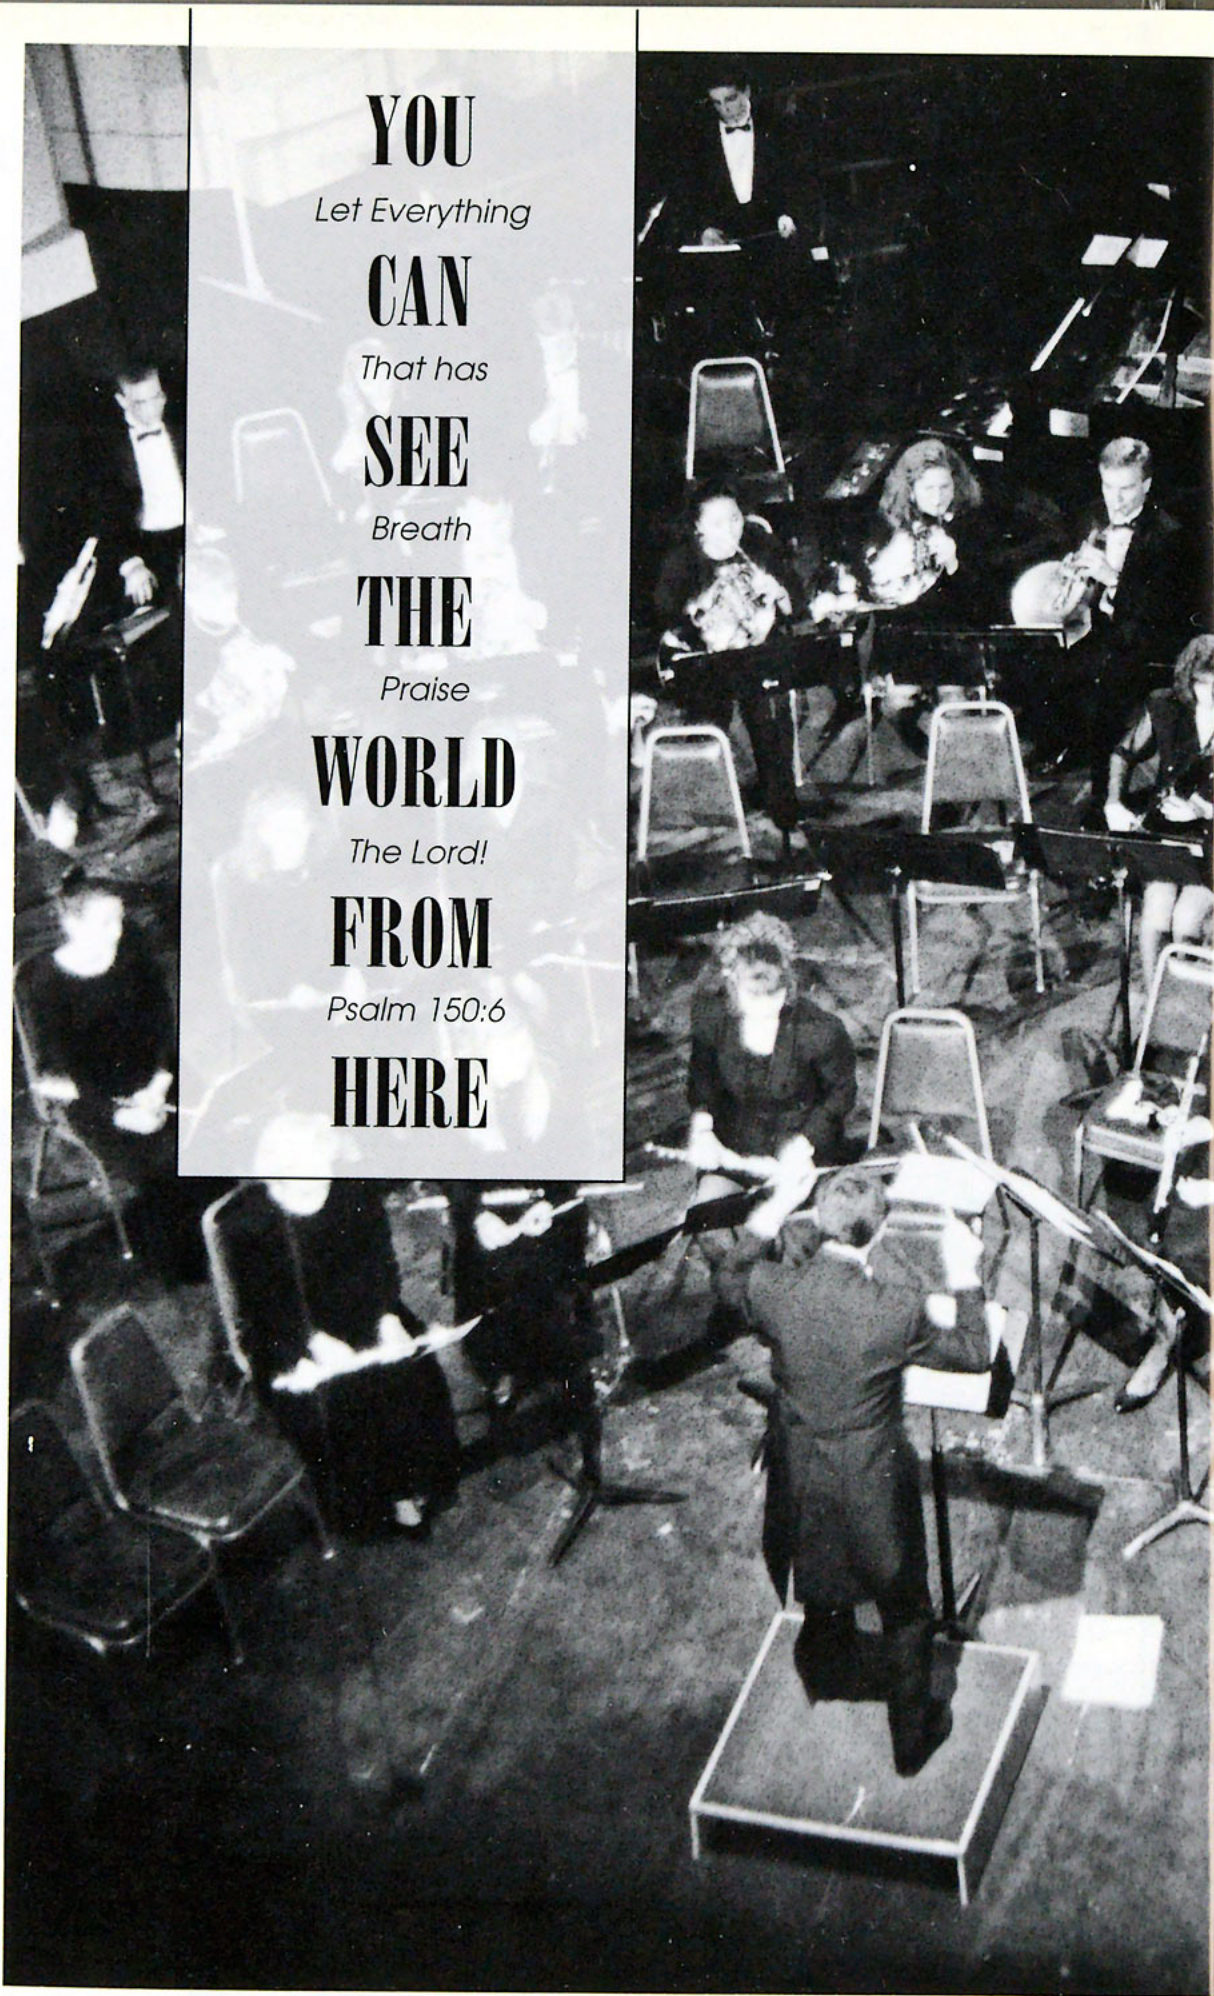

A well-organized system is clearly seen throughout Café Nazareth.

Every week day, students line up outside the cafeteria doors, anxiously awaiting their turn to be served. That is exactly what Bon Appétit accomplishes--being of service to their patrons, the students that make up Northwestern College.

Gary Lensing is doing a superb job managing the Bon Appétit food service.

Whether through listening, watching, or performing, music and drama have been something we have all learned to enjoy. At Northwestern College, the performing arts program has been in existence for over nine decades. Starting out rather small, the program has now grown to sixteen performance groups. Musical performances are given such as Harvest Sounds, Christmas at Northwestern and Northwestern at Orchestra Hall. The drama students participated in "My Fair Lady" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream" this year.

Together these talented groups all work to achieve one goal: sharing the testimony of love given through Jesus Christ.

College Choir

Being a part of the College Choir at Northwestern is a thrilling experience for any student. Not only do they perform in major concerts such as Christmas at Northwestern and Northwestern at Orchestra Hall, but they have also traveled to faraway lands.

This past summer, the 1993-94 College Choir members toured beautiful Sweden and Norway. Two highlights on this Scandinavian tour were the scenery of the land and the beauty of the city's cathedrals.

Sophomore Heather Fair mentioned that she was thankful and appreciative for the College Choir. "Because we attend a non-denominational school, we can enjoy and put into practice both devotions and prayer. We have the freedom to do this and I feel that there is a real family atmosphere among the College Choir members."

This year's choir consisted of sixty-three members. The group's main goal was to witness through a string of songs. Conductor Dr. Dennis Port picks out a theme to focus on each year. This year's theme, the crucifixion, focuses on being able to finally see our Lord in heaven. Their program begins with a selected song about the death of Jesus and follows with songs like "Face to Face" and "Home [with Jesus]." These songs remind us as Christians about our unique relationship with Jesus.

Because of Northwestern's music program, both choir members and audiences have grown closer to Christ.

The College Choir is joined by the Male Chorus and Women's Chorale for practice before the Christmas at Northwestern concert.

"Dear Christian Men, Rejoice!"

The Male Chorus is directed by Kenneth Fenton and consists of thirty-four members. It meets eighth hour Monday through Thursday; however, the group has two extra evening practices before such performances as Christmas at Northwestern.

"We open every day with devotions and prayers," said Jesse Rieth, a second tenor. "We are a lot closer because we share the same faith." For Rieth, this was one big difference between Northwestern College's music program and that of a secular college setting.

Baritone Geoffery Soeder says, "I like singing and the performances are memorable." He believes that the group is very dedicated. "Everybody likes to give it their all."

Some of their favorite songs are "The Heavens are Telling the Truth," by Hyden; "Widerspruch" (German for "contradiction"); "Advent Carol," by Lloyd Pfautsch, "Hodie Christus Natus Est," by Gordon H. Lamb; and "Go Tell It," a medley of sacred Christmas carols composed by Daniel Kallman. They are scheduled to tour Southern California in the spring.

"I enjoy music, and Women's Chorale is a fun thing to do with all girls-err-I mean women."

--Sara Bly

Women's Chorale is made up of sixty-four members and is conducted by Timothy Sawyer with assistant conductor, Robin Heggen.

Hannah Johnson, a first soprano, says that it is an honor to be a part of Women's Chorale. "I have grown musically because of the concentration on female voices," she says. Hannah was pleased after the St. John's concert in St. Cloud. "I know we honored God. I was pleased with how we came together," she expressed.

Sara Booth, a second alto, says that she does not consider

Women's Chorale a class but a fun activity. "I look forward to it every day. It's a relief from the rest of the day's business."

First alto Elizabeth Nurss talked about daily rehearsals. "They are intense. We work hard and fast to get through a lot of material." Elizabeth also said that the Chorale has devotional days where the women spend time sharing and praying. When a concert is over and the women hear the applause, they know that God has been honored with their voices.

Chamber Choir

The music program at Northwestern contains an abundance of talent and is able to showcase some of their special gifts in the Chamber Choir.

Chamber Choir is a group chosen from the College Choir. Those who are interested in being a part of the group sign up and the instructor, Dr. Port, chooses the members based on auditions for the College Choir. For fall and spring quarters the group consists of sixteen members; however, during winter quarter, while the group sings jazz, the size increases to twenty-four.

The choir has three repertoires. The first is ethnic, the second is jazz and the third is open. For the Harvest Sounds concert, the choir's ethnic music was Ukrainian. Dr. Port said this music was the highlight of the year. This was because he had brought the music back from the Ukraine and it had never been performed outside the country. The Choir sang two songs in Ukrainian and one song in Russian.

Being in the Chamber Choir offers students the opportunity to spend extra time with music in a more specialized setting.

The Brass Quintet members: Ben Gundale, Tyrone Spent, Christopher Russell, David Hinz, and Laura Glenn perform prelude music in the foyer of Maranatha Hall for the Christmas at Northwestern concert.

The Chamber Choir performs under the direction of Dr. Port at the Harvest Sounds concert.

Musical Notes. . .

"I really like the theme [What Wondrous Love] because it doesn't just center on Christ's birth, but the wondrous love God has for us and everything Jesus did for us on earth."--Stephanie Momose

"It was really neat to perform for full houses every night [Christmas concert]."--Christopher Russell

"To God and to the Lamb I will sing: Who is the Great I Am, While millions join the theme, I will sing."--What Wondrous Love

Gwen Clanton sings during extra practice time the week before the Christmas concert.

Chamber Choir members Ethan Johnson, Jonathan Thompson, Gwen Clanton and Rachel Sprecher sing a Ukrainian folk tune.

"What Wonderous Love"

Christmas is a time of the year celebrating God's love come down to earth. The Christmas at Northwestern concert also reminded listeners that this love is for the whole year, not only December 25th.

The significance of the coming of Jesus was illustrated in many ways. A favorite phrase of Dr. Port's was "Christ laid aside His crown for my soul." It came from the song "What Wonderous Love," and reminds us of the sacrifice made and the depth of Jesus' love.

A poetic reading entitled "The Singer" was a part of the illustration of God's love. As the program stated, "Christ is a Troubadour, sent by Earthmaker (God the Father), to teach a redeeming melody to their wayward planet (Terra)."

The concert reached a large number of people, with a full house for each of the three performances. A production of that size took a large amount of planning and effort. In June, Kenneth Fenton, Dennis Port, Timothy Sawyer, Holly Donato (narration) and Phil Norris brainstormed for an idea. The rehearsing began the first week of school. Those participating consisted of 160 singers, twelve handbell players, forty band members, forty wind ensemble members, fifteen orchestra members and four readers. All the work that went into the concert was to give a better picture of the love God has for us. The concert ended with the benediction song "O Love, How Deep." The last verse states "All glory to our Lord and God for love so deep, so high, so broad; the Trinity whom we adore forever and forevermore. Amen."

Timothy Sawyer quiets the Women's Chorale to pianissimo as they sing in the Christmas concert.

The combined choirs rehearse under the direction of Dr. Port.

Readers theatre members: C.J. Lingensfelder, Wes Halula, Debbie Giovenco and Amy Volkmann tell the story of "The Singer."

Music, Faith, and Friendship

Music, faith, and friendship intertwine to make Northwestern's Concert Band and Wind Ensemble a unique experience.

At the beginning of the year, students audition with a piece of their choice. Of those who become the Concert band, some are chosen for the select Wind Ensemble, which plays more difficult pieces. These performing groups are directed by Phil Norris, with Scott Ivester as the assistant conductor.

Each group rehearses twice a week and practices include warm-ups with scales and etudes. After which they rehearse music for any upcoming concerts.

Beyond the rehearsals, band members took time out of their week to focus on God. Each Wednesday they had devotions; they also gathered in prayer groups once a week.

Members of the Wind Ensemble grew closer together this year during their Chicago and Indiana tours and their band retreat. Sarah Eberth, a Concert Band and Wind Ensemble member said, "I appreciate the way that people work together. At the band retreat we got closer and got to know each other better so we [now] work together, and have something in common as Christians."

Performers with Class

Two groups that are a vital part of the Northwestern music department are the Chamber Orchestra and the Chamber Winds. The Chamber Orchestra is under the direction of Mary Sorlie and the Chamber Winds is under the direction of Cheryl Kelley.

These groups focus on the classical style of music with the Valentine's Day concert being an excellent example. They performed "Peter and the Wolf" by Sergei Prokofiev. During the evening they also accompanied pianist Charles Kemper on "Piano Concerto No. 2" by Frederick Chopin.

One highlight during the year for the Chamber Orchestra and Chamber Winds was a four day concert tour through the Wisconsin towns of Chippewa Falls, Sheboygan, and Kenosha. They performed at churches and were welcomed into the homes of people from those churches. Violinist Kristin Pearson shared, "The most memorable part of the tour for me was when we gathered together before our concerts for a time of sharing and prayer." Overall, the tour was a wonderful opportunity for the two groups to serve God and to minister through their music.

Throughout the year, whether in practice, performance, or just for fun, the talented musicians of the Chamber Orchestra and the Chamber Winds show themselves to be class performers.

The Jazz Band includes seventeen talented students and is directed by Paul Babcock. This band is a mix of saxophones, trombones, trumpets, bass, drums, piano, and guitar. A veteran of the Jazz Band, Tyrone Spent, says, "This year's group is young but good. They have a lot of good musicians and personalities which adds to the flavor of the group."

The band has had three different directors in three years. This year the director is a drummer "by nature," so according to Spent this is a unique and colorful difference from the past years. On the uniqueness of this group Spent says, "The few college jazz bands that are around are worth making note of." Having been asked to describe this year's group, John Vaughn, a trumpet player, uses these adjectives. "jazzy, trendy, energetic." John says he's "just bluesy" and that's why he likes jazz.

Many of the members in this group have been involved in jazz for a long time. For instance, Rachel Durgan, saxophone player, has been in jazz since seventh grade. Ben Gundale, Tyrone Spent and others agree that saxophone player Heidi Helstad is the group's inspirational leader. "Heidi is a fully devoted member to the Jazz Band," says Tyrone. Any one who knows Heidi will tell you she is a fun person, which makes sense because this is NWC's fun band.

The Brass Choir is made up of seven trumpet players, five French horns, two trombones, two euphoniums, a tuba and director, Scott Ivester. Kristi Kodet describes their sound: "We are different from other groups because there is a certain quality about brass instruments. It is a very bright and full sound." She will always remember their first performance in the Nazareth Chapel balcony. "Because of the ceiling the acoustics are such that when you stand in a half circle you can hear people in opposite corners as if they were using a microphone. It was really neat." Trumpet player Ben Gundale says he is happy when things go well because a lot of work was put into it. He gives one adjective for Brass Choir: "Growing! The group keeps getting bigger each year."

Handbell Choir. Front: Anne Martin, Christina Allen, Becca Anderson, Amy Elliott, and Amee Buster. Back: Jennifer Bunting, Jennifer Munsen, Tammy Reu, Robin Gilbert, Rachel Westburg, Monika Sawall, Cami Larson, Joy DeBuhr, and Sharon Carlson-conductor.

Women wearing white gloves. A long, black, velvet table supporting a row of golden bells lined from smallest to largest. Beautiful chiming filling the room to produce music you would never guess could be made with a set of bells. This is the Handbell Choir. Rachel Westburg says she has played handbells before and really enjoys it. "Everybody helps each other. Any time someone needs a bell played and can't turn the page someone will reach over and turn the page," she explains. Reflecting on the unity of the group, Jennifer Bunting said, "We all have to work together. We can't go off in our own little world." Having been asked to describe the group Jennifer Munsen said, "We are a group of girls who appreciate music and like being together. We play music that our audience will enjoy and that praises God."

These women meet twice a week for practice. They have played for chapel and a few other concerts here at school, including Christmas at Northwestern. The Choir plans on touring California in February. Their favorite songs include "Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming," "What Child is This," and "What Wondrous Love is This."

To take care of their bells, the girls polish them at least once a quarter and always store them carefully in special cases. Watching them perform is almost as entertaining as listening to them ring their bells. The individual members exchange positions and bells during different pieces, yet the beauty of the bells cannot be exchanged for another sound.

Extension Ministries

Silent Service

Have you ever tried to tell someone something without actually talking? Well, this talented Silent Service team does just that; and it does so successfully.

The team ministers to churches all over Minnesota. Their presentation is a new and different way of introducing the gospel message. It affects both Christians and pre-Christians in a visual way. The performers are also affected when they actually present the characters. They must "feel" what the character is feeling at the time.

Erik Jacobson, a member of the team, said, "This method of ministry is different--it grabs your attention more than any other type of ministry."

"It is an awesome experience to witness to someone without words. They remember it because they see it and it leaves a lasting impression."

--Estrietta Martin

Rhapsody Singers

Twelve talented students traveling to different churches on weekends--this is what Rhapsody Singers is all about. On a much deeper level however, the ministry of these students through music is unique. Not only do they represent Northwestern College, but they minister to the spiritual needs of the audience through contemporary praise and worship songs.

During a performance full of accapella and harmony, the students give personal testimonies of what the Lord has been doing in their lives. The audience is often encouraged to join in on the songs. The musical excellence and Christian commitment of the Rhapsody Singers is very evident.

During a weekend performance, the twelve-member crew has time to work together on building lasting friendships.

Reflections

The ministry of music is powerful, and when these seven young women perform together as a team, their witness of Jesus Christ is strong.

Reflections is a team that travels to local churches on Sunday mornings to perform the special music or to do a concert during the main worship service.

One thing that these ladies have learned is that being in a ministry is not easy. "We are ministering to them and not them to us--we have to stay right with God," said student leader Monica Lettner.

Even though they are seven different people, each with different backgrounds, their main goal is the same: "To touch people in churches through a certain song--so that maybe something in the song will remind them of their walk with Jesus and bring them back," was the thought of Aimmie Ek.

Jeff and Amy Radich

The ministry of Jeff and Amy Radich is unique. This team is a brother and sister duo who have been singing together for two years now. Their ministry has taken them to places that were once only a dream.

Traveling to churches throughout the five-state area and beyond, they sing hymns and contemporary music. Accompanying them is their puppet friend "Oscar".

In addition to visiting churches, Jeff and Amy have won two contests and performed at a number of Youth for Christ rallies and Billy Graham conferences.

This brother and sister team is successful because they focus on one major concept: family. Because they themselves are a family, they can relate to their audiences.

Audiences enjoy the message that Jeff and Amy bring to them.

During the two years they have been working together, they have become closer friends. Their shared desire to serve the Lord is evident in the message of their music.

The main goal that Jeff and Amy strive to achieve is to "minister the gospel effectively to different people and different age groups."

"People like us because we are not only a family, but we represent a stable one, and they relate to us."

--Jeff Radich

Forté

The exciting, upbeat music of the four performers of this group is sure to set your feet tapping. The team goes to churches and youth group events to show that Jesus Christ is exciting and always will be.

Since they first started three years ago, they have been on two tours—one to Colorado Springs in 1994, and the other to Texas in the summer of 1993.

Their main purpose is to show "that God is not a boring God. We have Him in our lives and that is great" voiced the team member Matt Shurr.

During their performances they can feel the Holy Spirit working. Although the song may be "old" to Forté, it is new to the audience. If Matt, Steve, Neil and Tory keep this in mind, they see that the audience is being blessed by the music.

Unfortunately, homework is an essential aspect of a student's college career. Although it has its place, we all need to be reminded that it is difficult to view the world from behind a desk.

Northwestern now houses over twenty different organizational groups. They offer, in addition to our academics, an opportunity to taste and watch the world.

Each organization, whether it be ministry-minded or focused on academic pursuits, enables the student to apply what they have learned in their classes and in their walk with Christ.

Northwestern College encourages students to take part in all of its organizations and to view the world from beyond a desk piled with homework.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes

Fellowship of Christian Athletes is for those athletes who want to meet with other Christians for a time of fellowship and fun. Once a week they get together to either play board games, watch movies or both. These times that they share with one another are times that each athlete member can relax and kick back from any school pressures they may have.

Solid Impact

Solid Impact is a great way for Northwestern students and other Christians to learn martial arts, as well as have fellowship together. They learn Tae Kwon Do, Karate, and Jujitsu. All instructors hold full, black belt rank. The group believes the martial arts are an aid in at least three areas of human development: mental, physical, and spiritual. Members can learn self-defense, achieve physical fitness, build self-confidence and learn self-discipline.

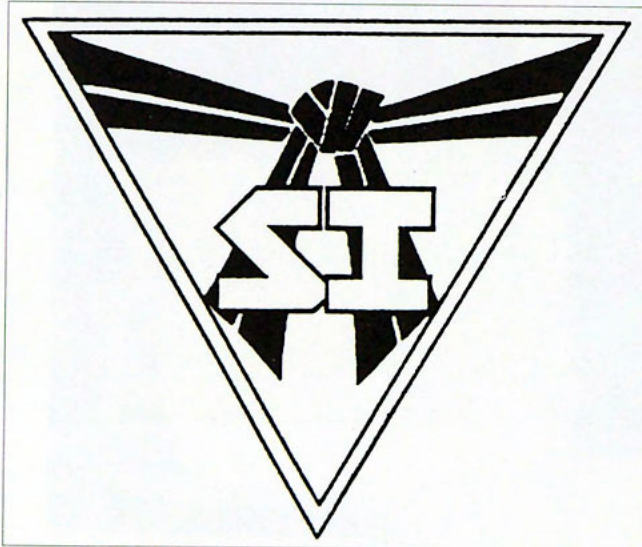

Over the summer of 1994, the group hosted the annual Solid Impact clinic. Approximately one-hundred and eighty-five people attended; some came from as far as Florida. Through all this, twenty-five martial artists made first time descisions for Jesus.

Networking the Streets for Jesus

Networks is an organization that sends out different teams on Wednesday and Friday nights to minister to people on the streets of Minneapolis and St. Paul. They have visited the Uptown Bus Depot, Hard Times Cafe, Nicolet Mall, and the Airport. Chris Kadlec said that going out with Networks was doing his small part to fulfill the Great Commission. Cari Blanchard explained that they spend a lot of the time getting to know the people first before they share the gospel. Toby Fuerst had this to say about Networks, "It's also an opportunity to go downtown and see people on the streets and get an idea of the different cultures of people. We want to develop a heart, and we want to care for those people so that we may have an opportunity to share the Gospel. It's also a learning experience for us." He also explains that it is an opportunity to see if they are interested in full-time inner city work.

Short Horses with Big Goals

A question that may frequently come to mind when one hears of Short Horses is, "Where did they come up with a name like that?" It developed when one of the leaders of the ministry, while driving through some countryside, mentioned that he liked the short horses by a farmhouse. One member thought that this catchy phrase would be a good name for the youth ministry team.

Short Horses presents the Gospel to rural youth. Many of these kids come from similar backgrounds as those of the inner city. The ministry team reaches the young people through churches that are without a youth pastor or director.

Short Horses sponsors retreats that include messages, games, drama, and an "off-campus" activity. The team is with the young people Friday and Saturday. They usually stay for the Sunday service and participate with testimony, music, drama or they organize and make up the entire service.

The youth get a fresh perspective on Christianity from Short Horses. It is a once-a-year activity they love. The group's goal is to plant seeds of faith that will be nurtured through others. Peggy Molitor, a Short Horses member, said, "I don't think we've ever left a retreat without a kid making a commitment to Christ or having a better understanding of Jesus Christ." Now that is fun with eternal benefits!

Discipleship Team Leaders

The discipleship team leaders are a group of students that oversee the discipleship groups such as Prayer Partners, Prayer Zones and Bible studies (men's and women's). They work together with Dean Paulson, discipleship coordinator.

On Thursdays, the leaders have a time of Bible study and sharing in Dean's office. Joe Biancardi, the Bible studies leader, hopes to be a friend and an encourager to the other discipleship team leaders. Each of the Bible studies he is responsible for has approximately six members in each of them. The topic of study for each group varies, so finding the right one is not difficult.

Overall, the discipleship team leaders strive to provide Northwestern students with opportunities for personal growth in Jesus Christ.

Quotes . . .

"When you worship together, it usually brings people together; so I really enjoy them [worship chapels]."

--Randi Myhre

"They are different than normal chapel services; students can actively participate in worship chapels."

--Heather Ulferts

"Many times worship chapels turn what was a bad day into a better day. This is because of the upbeat music."

--Melanie Corrow

"Reliance on prayer is my key focus in trying to balance my school schedule and making time to be a discipleship team leader."

--Joe Biancardi

Retirement Center Teams

Having a ministry to the elderly has turned out to be an experience these students will always remember.

The Retirement Center Team consists of seven individual teams. Each team has a leader and volunteers who work under them. Six teams go out to retirement center homes and the seventh travels to the Harbour Light Salvation Army.

The service is usually Sunday afternoon and a guest speaker is arranged to speak by Tim Innes, student outreach coordinator. Hymns are led by the team, and afterwards there is a time for socializing with the people. "They love to talk to us because we are a younger generation. . . we hear stories of 'when I was younger. . .'"

Generally, the people in these retirement homes can't get out, and seeing the team members for the service is a treat all look forward to. The students who participate on the retirement center team many times feel that although they are there to minister to the people, the people usually minister to them in indirect ways.

"They have shown me that God has a plan--He worked it out in their lives and He will be faithful in completing His plan in my life."

--Rachel Roelofs

The EagleCrest Retirement Center Team members, Cheryl Pilkington and Nate Wald, encourage a resident and provide a listening ear.

Angels Watching Over Us

Do you believe in Angels? You should. Angels are heavenly beings created by God for His purposes. The professors here at Northwestern believe in heavenly angels as well as the down-to-earth kind--NWC students.

Currently, there are over one-hundred

Guardian Angels. These angels do many things. Some GA's decorate doors, make crafts or goodies, or give candy. The majority of GA's just encouraged their professor with notes or Bible verses. The main goal of every guardian angel is to encourage the professor and make them feel good.

Archangel Monica

Sawall feels that this fun club is very important not only to the professors but also to the students. "It is real neat to see your professor's face in the class after they just recieved something from you."

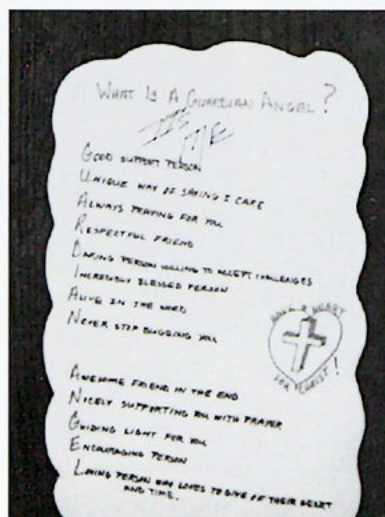

The big finale of the year is the revelation party at which the professor meets their GA. Many professors have returned their GA's generosity by giving them a gift at the party.

Becoming a Guardian Angel is a real honor. It is fun to let professors know that they are loved.

May I Show You Around?

Did you receive a tour of Northwestern before you decided to attend the school? If so, you probably were greeted and guided by one of the ambassadors. Ambassadors give tours to visitors--mainly prospective students. They visit admissions, Cafe Nazareth, the gym, Nazareth chapel, and Maranatha auditorium -- all the familiar and beloved places we call home. Besides the tours, ambassadors also help out in the admissions office with mailing projects. This can get pretty hectic at times --especially when all the high school students are turning in their applications.

Dr. Harvey Martin's door was decorated by his guardian angel this past winter.

The Guardian Angels pictured here are only a few of the numerous students involved in the organization. Guardian Angels are students from Northwestern College who "serve" professors (only the professors don't know who they are).

Hospitality With a Smile

The hospitality crew is responsible for finding dorm rooms for visitors who want to stay on campus. The crew has a list of potential students who have offered their dorm rooms. This is for prospective students who want to "get a taste" of residence life. It is a unique way for students to get involved with admissions--not to mention creating new friendships.

COMMUNICATING ACROSS CAMPUS

NWC Report

NWC Report is the student news production that airs on a local cable channel (33) from 5-5:30 p.m. on Thursdays. The advisor is Richard Long.

The news cast covers topics such as the local community, high schools, local sports, weather, and Northwestern College news. Each person is to keep track of a certain area and to write stories about it. In addition, they may be assigned duties such as news anchor, cameraman, floor director, sound technician, technical engineer, graphic generator, teleprompter, director, producer or video operator.

Lisa Winkler, co-producer, wants to go into TV news as a profession either as a producer or reporter. According to her, "This is the best practical experience I could ever hope for. How many other people get to do exactly what they want to do while they are in college? We [the crew] are like a family. It's so worth it!"

WVOE

Ever since the Northwestern student radio switched over from A.M. to the 107.5 F.M. spot on the dial, the Christian Contemporary music has flowed even more clearly throughout the campus. It is on 24 hours a day, whether it be a DJ shift or a CD changer. Besides music, the station keeps students informed of weather, news, sports, upcoming concerts and other events.

Program director Nate Wald is considering radio work as a career. "I enjoy a lot of Christian contemporary artists and I like playing their music over the air," he said. Troy Klien describes WVOE as "catering to musical tastes for all the students. It's not only entertainment, but we try to provide ministry and information for students as well."

Scroll Staff

The Scroll staff meets twice a week. They are responsible for the layout, design, photographs, and copy in this publication. Dale Lewis is the yearbook advisor. This year's smaller Scroll staff put forth great effort to produce a yearbook representing Northwestern College. At every stage of development they dedicated themselves to working together and to reaching the final goal.

"Hey guys, this is really good!" Jeff Hagen contributes to a Cadence brain storming session.

CaDeNce

The Cadence magazine is one of the best college magazines in Minnesota having won several awards. The founder and advisor is Dan Pawley. The group meets every Tuesday. This year, the issues have had themes such as image, the super-natural, and fitness. Co-editor Kelly Brun says being on the staff gives her a good chance to develop her journalistic skills. Gretchyn Fluth, the second co-editor, said, "It's been like an internship by preparing me for the kind of job I will be doing." Fluth also commented on the staff, "As a staff we all have different personalities, but these personalities work together to produce a quality magazine." Brun says it is good to have their own office and computers. With the quality of issues that come out, one can certainly see that the staff does not just sit on the steps with conventional typewriters and bottles of "white out."

Academic Mania

English: Sigma Tau Delta is an English honor society with nationwide counterparts. It has the distinction of being the only Greek organization on campus. Sigma Tau meets annually to discuss a monthly activity. The activities for the past year include acting out plays at Dr. Boeckel's home, participating in annual poetry readings, and watching Macbeth.

Mrs. Sommers is the head of the organization, and officers are elected each year after the formal initiation ceremony in May. This year, there are four officers and fourteen members.

Cindy Henschel, historian, likes being a part of the group because she has a chance to get to know students and faculty better and because it looks good on her resume.

History: The history club at Northwestern is not just for history majors but is for anyone who enjoys history.

The club meets once a month and participates in a wide variety of activities. In the fall, on Dr. Aling's birthday they watched "Much Ado About Nothing." They have also listened to lectures and traveled to historical sites. It is a fun, casual time for the students to get together with others who have a similar interest in history.

Education: The education club is for those who are majoring in education and are looking for a time of fun learning. The group, which meets about once a month, discusses educational topics and occasionally has guest speakers.

The theme verses for the club are Ephesians 4:11-13. They state the different callings God has given us "so that the body of Christ may be built up until we all reach unity in the faith and in the knowledge of the Son of God and become mature, attaining to the whole measure of the fullness of Christ."

Member Sheila Robinson said, "Belonging to the education club is beneficial because it is good to take time out and be involved with peers outside the classroom."

Speech: The speech team participated in several events this year including the Krossman Klassic, the Normandale tournament and the Twin Cities Forensics League Tournament. They placed fourth out of twelve schools at the Normandale and Twin Cities Forensics League. Some of the categories of competition are communication analysis, persuasive speaking, after dinner speaking, informative, impromptu and dramatic duo. The competitions, social times, and the friendships made among team members throughout the season all helped to make the experience enjoyable.

Here on the campus of Northwestern,
the administration, faculty and staff constantly seek to reach beyond the office and the classroom into the lives of students. Using the Word of God as the filter for all academic pursuits, their desire is that each student would get a quality education and, at the same time, grow spiritually. They believe that having a "biblical worldview" is more than "viewing the world biblically." It must affect not only HOW a person views the world but also WHAT one sees in the world. This mindset sometimes causes some extraordinary assignments to be given and probing questions to be asked. All this is in order to get us to think for ourselves, to look beyond ourselves. Because of their dedication and God's amazing grace, students will leave Northwestern prepared to have a positive spiritual impact upon their homes, churches, communities, and the marketplaces of the world.

“I hope my academic experiences will allow me to add something of value to Northwestern’s vision of educating young Christians and arming them to make an impact on our world.”

NEW MAJORS ADDED

Biology

The biology major was designed in part to prepare a student for entrance into medical school or graduate school, according to Jerry Beilby, associate professor of biology. “This major is for students with a strong high school background in science and math.” Courses added include Genetics, Cell Biology, Bio-Chemistry, Ecology and expanded Micro-Biology. A one-year internship is also being developed which will give biology majors a one-on-one lab experience with an industry or at the University of Minnesota.

ESL

“The English as a Second Language teaching major includes Minnesota licensure for grades K-12,” according to Socorro Woodbury, director of Racial and Ethnic Diversity (REDOC) and assistant professor of Spanish. “Many of the new courses are interdisciplinary based in the English, Communication, Education and History departments which provides excellent diversity.”

History

According to Dr. Charles Aling, chair of the Department of Social Sciences, the History major’s primary strength is the ability to teach students to think analytically and critically.” A history degree teaches problem-solving and research skills.” Careers for history majors include museum work, historical research, law enforcement, even business, specifically sales and personnel work. “When it comes to studying the world of the Bible, there’s no better place than here.”

God richly blesses each individual with unique talents and abilities, and some of our student athletes here at Northwestern College have the opportunity of displaying those God-given skills in selected sports programs. Whether it be cross-country, volleyball, soccer, football, cheerleading, basketball, softball, baseball, track & field, tennis or golf, participants strive to use their talents to the best of their ability and to the full glory of God.

A great emphasis is put on team unity, sportsmanship and a Christian attitude. Athletic Director Joe Smith says, "We are a group of Christian athletes and coaches who believe God is far more concerned about how we handle victory, defeat, frustration and joy, than the final score."

Team Unity Makes A Difference

The Eagle football team strived for more than a winning record this year. They put their talents, hopes for the team, and hearts on the line to bring unity to the team.

Senior defensive lineman, Chay Ha, who played his last year of football here at NWC said, "Our team was like a bunch of brothers: a family. We pushed for unity throughout the season which really made a difference in how we played on the field." He continued by saying, "We had great potential this year, and we fulfilled our plans."

New players added diversity to the unified team which will help in upcoming years. Signs of a great team were evident as the Eagles finished with an outstanding record of 6-3. Team captains for the year were seniors John Cass and Greg Nelson.

Eagles return to the field led by #1 Sam Cruver following half-time.

Inspiration

Playing for our Creator

A combination of returning and new players made the Eagle volleyball team a successful one. With an overall record of 15-19 and a conference record of 7-5, the women finished their season with pride.

But success is not the most important thing to these athletes. Jody Miller, freshman, expressed her thoughts on the team by saying, "Our team has a different kind of bond. Our main focus was God, and we were playing for Him. Through devotions and prayers we became great friends." This bond held the lady Eagles together in some tough situations. Jody concluded by saying, "Volleyball has been a wonderful inspiration to me, and my teammates are like family."

Captains for the year were senior Audra Cake from Des Moines, Iowa; senior Kristin Mertens from Aberdeen, South Dakota; and senior Brenda Bohnet from Henning, Minnesota.

Determination and Sacrifice

Tools for Success

This year's cross country team performed very well. The team has enjoyed running their best this season and having fun at the meets.

Betsy Riess, Molly Sunde, Terri Jo Olson, Chad Dearing, Jeremy Van Camp, Christian Zimmerman, Jason Campbell, Matt Henderson, Paul Fishbach and Jeff Weddle had the opportunity to go to New York this year for national competition. The men's team held 10th place with great performances by all participants. Leading for the Eagles were Chad Dearing with a time of 27:17, placing 41st out of 106 runners and Paul Fischbach with a 27:18 finishing 42nd. Betsy Riess also improved her record by seven seconds with a 21:23, placing 25th out of 89 runners.

Many of the team members agree that this year has been a struggle, but at the same time, it has also been a learning experience. Diane Diller says, "Personally, this year has been one of my best seasons. I feel really good about how I ran, but there is always room for improvement." And with determination and sacrifice, the team will succeed in improving!

Soccer Kicks Through a Great Season!

Hans Nelson blows by a defender for another goal.

Looks like Hans Nelson has everything under control!

This year the men's soccer team has undergone struggles and victories. During the season Eric Martin was kicked in the ribs, making him unable to play. Fortunately, Chad Groen came to the rescue and has done a lot for the team even while coming late in the season. The team went to Districts and had a memorable finish, with a 8-9-1 record.

When Andrew Cox was asked if playing for a Christian college made any difference, he said, "Definitely prayer before and after practice, devotions, and everyone having a good attitude makes playing a lot more fun." Another aspect of this season that has made the team grow closer is the friendships. Andreas Viumdal says, "The most fun is to win the games, but I would also say equal to that is the friendship built in the team. You feel supported by the team and that's a nice feeling."

Who would have known? Behind the scenes, our soccer players are having an enthusiastic time both on and off the field. After the Eagles challenge Pillsbury to a rousing game of soccer, the Northwestern team engages in an annual tradition. This includes dinner and a ceremonial ritual. After dinner, food scraps are collected and put into a glass. A toast speech is given while this concoction is passed around for every member to drink from. Sounds delicious! All in all, this season has been both a learning experience as well as an enjoyable one for the men's soccer team.

"We all stuck together from the beginning. There was a lot of encouragement from players and coaches, as well as fans and the athletic department."

--Senior Kelly Myers

"We had an awesome coach. He had a devotional time before each practice, which helped us to encourage each other. It was one of the best experiences I've had at college so far."

--Junior Karin Riecke

"I joined the team without much playing experience, and I was just as welcomed as those with a great deal of experience. Although I would have liked more games, I had a blast with the ones we had!"

Off to a Great Start

This has been a special season for women's soccer because it is the first time that Northwestern has offered the sport. The team played seven games in all against DMLC; Concordia, St. Paul; UW-Stout; St. Cloud and Bethel.

On every team, there are a lot of different abilities displayed and contributed by each member. Although not every player on the team this year possessed prior experience playing competitive soccer, the individuals only needed motivation to work hard and to play their best.

Many of the players would like to play for Northwestern again. Heidi Feder says, "I really had fun this season. It's really nice to be on a team that's all friends, and it's great to play for a Christian school."

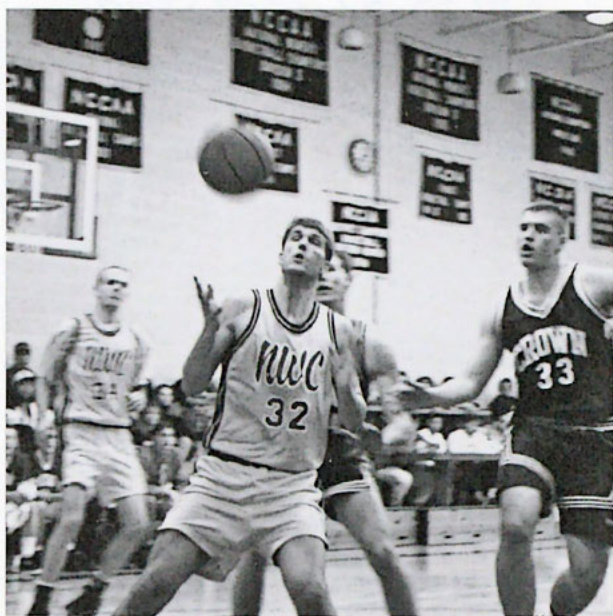

Bridget Kueper races with the ball as teammate Stephanie Gibbs awaits the pass.

Men's Basketball Strives for . . . Team Unity

The men's basketball team got off to a great start by defeating cross-town rival, Bethel College, and they continued to excel throughout the season.

The men gained needed balance with many talented freshman. Paul Bradenburg and Tim Aalsma were two freshmen who experienced starting positions and will contribute greatly in upcoming years.

Seniors Kenny Spieler, Tod Bocken, Mike Fitzgerald, Tim Skelly and Mike Hansen have shared their talents for the last year. Mike Fitzgerald gained recognition by breaking the three-point record in Minnesota last year as junior.

The team completed UMAC play with a perfect 10-0 record and finished their regular season with a record of 19-8. After the game against UW-Superior, Senior Mike Fitzgerald completed his goal to become the all-time scoring leader at NWC with 1,996 points.

In the NCCAA Midwest district, the men easily defeated Trinity Christian. They narrowly lost to Cornerstone College in the championship game. The team also received an at-large bid to the NCCAA National tournament which they accepted. The Eagles have been able to reach their team unity goals, and they are a team that glorifies the Lord.

Playing Out Their Testimony

The women's basketball team has exceeded their hopes. They had gone undefeated in conference until a narrow loss to Mount Senario near the end of the season; however, the ladies won the UMAC Championship by defeating Carleton after that tough loss to Mount Senario.

Four new players joined the Lady Eagles this year as well as one veteran player returning after a year's absence.

The Eagles stronghold was in their rebounding and speed. Sophomore Kari Sternitzky holds the school record for the most rebounds and Sue Reynolds and JoAnn Venhuizen added to the statistics.

The Lady Eagles went to the NCCAA National Tournament in New York where they took 5th place. The Eagles lost the opening game to Bartlesville Wesleyan and then went on to defeat Roberts Wesleyan and Oakland City in the consolation championship game. The ladies finished their season with a record of 23-7.

The women have a strong sense of unity. "We really have built lasting relationships," says Kari Sternitzky. Part of their unity comes from their daily team devotions and sharing time. All in all, the women's basketball team has proven themselves as a testimony to others--win or lose.

Golf Team Sets Goals

The men's golf team completed a successful eight matches and went on to conference. Their main goal of the season was to defeat rival Pillsbury, whom they had never defeated. Another goal was to win conference. Unfortunately, after being ahead of Pillsbury the first day of conference, they lost by ten strokes. Due to circumstances, top player Mike Fitzgerald was unable to play in conference and the team missed his contribution.

Craig Phillips and Barry Quernemoen made All-Conference with third and fifth place finishes.

Even though they did not meet their season goal, this golf team achieved the ultimate goal of serving the Lord with their talents.

Cheerleaders Excite Fans

The cheerleading squads took on a new goal this year: to excite fans and encourage spirit.

The football and soccer squad consisted of Elizabeth Nosek, Theresa Johnson, Trisca Farmer, Michele Johnson, Irma Brito and Rebecca Lockridge. The basketball squad included Elizabeth Nosek, Irma Brito, Trisca Farmer, Cheri Limanen, and Rachel De Master. Both were advised by Liz Miller.

The women met for three-hour practices three times each week. The girls worked on cheers and stimulated ideas to create more spirit among the fans.

Elizabeth Nosek, Cheri Limanen, Rachel De Master, and Irma Brito perform a floor cheer at the men's basketball game against Crown College.

The cheerleaders also took time to decorate for homecoming. "The homecoming football game was the most fun because the fans got really involved by painting their faces, making noise makers, and cheering loud," said Freshman Michele Johnson. Another highlight for the cheerleaders was the Dome game.

The cheerleaders had a big task laid out for them, but the fans seem to agree that they did a great job!

Irma Brito smiles at the camera. She cheers for both football and basketball.

"I.M. broomball is fun because it's hilarious seeing people wipe out on the ice. But the best part is that it's so brutal. . .biggest bruises win!" --Sonya Petersen

"Intramural basketball is a good way to have fun hanging out with friends, and it is a good way to get out of studying (and stay away from girls because they have cooties!)."

--Ryan Hughes

"You can recognize the broomball players by their bruised knees and elbows."

--Melody Bergan

"Intramural volleyball is a good way to get away from the books, take a break from pressures, and meet guys."

--Anonymous

Intramurals

The gym is filled with many activities throughout the year. During the different seasons, enthusiastic students can be seen gathering in the gym for the sport of their choice. Volleyball is an exciting pastime during the fall and spring quarters. The winter season is busy with broomball, women's basketball, and men's basketball. Hockey is another activity held during the year for anyone interested in getting involved.

Both athletic talents and free-spirited wills are combined to make the intramural games a success. Anyone is qualified to participate.

From studying and taking notes to holding serious discussions in class, a break in the same old routine can be necessary to keep one's sanity! Intramurals is an exciting alternative to this routine that includes excited, fun-loving students who know where the places to be after classes are--the RILEY GYM or LAKE JOHANNA!

On the court, action is displayed by the players during one of the games.

Intently focusing on the ball, Chad Dearking takes a full swing.

During 1993, a peace accord was signed in Rwanda ending a three year war. Now, more than a million refugees have been forced to flee to other neighboring countries.

Refugees fleeing the dictatorial regime of Fidel Castro were refused entry into the United States. President Clinton ended 28 years of favored treatment for Cuban refugees. He ordered U.S. ships to intercept those fleeing Cuba by boat and to detain them at the U.S. Naval base in Guantanamo Bay.

Signs of the Times

After 46 years as enemies, Israel and Jordan made peace with President Bill Clinton presiding at a White House Mideast Peace ceremony.

The murder trial of O. J. Simpson was called a trial of the century. Simpson was accused of murdering his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman.

The 1994 World Cup Soccer competition was played in the United States. In this photo, the U.S. team played Brazil but lost 1-0 in the second round. Brazil advanced to the finals where they played Italy. An estimated 2 billion people worldwide watched Brazil battle Italy to a 0-0 tie for 120 minutes at the final game played in the Rose Bowl. Brazil won 3-2 in a shootout.

Because of the 1994 baseball season strikes, the World Series was not played for the first time since 1904.

Forest fires swept across more than a dozen western states. An eight-year drought brought the U.S. its worst forest fires since the 1920s.

"Northwestern College has shaped our lives and impacted our world view. No matter what training we have received from here, we are all held responsible to God for what we've learned and even more accountable for our actions. I thank the Lord for our great staff and all NWC students because without them we would have nothing to relive. It has been rewarding to watch the staff work on the Scroll and to now finally see it in print."

--Lisa Mollet, Senior Editor

"I have especially appreciated our team's commitment to producing a yearbook on top of an already demanding academic schedule. At times there is a sacrifice to make, but this sacrifice brings with it the rich rewards of wisdom gained, improved talents and skills, pride in accomplishments and new friendships."

Julie

--Julie Radloff, Production Editor

"There is a lot of time and effort needed to put a yearbook together. This year's staff accepted the challenge and accomplished the task set before them through individual hard work and a diligent team effort. For me, the most memorable part of being on staff this year is the friendships that I have developed through both the fun times and the stressful times. These friendships are ones which I will cherish for a long time. A special thanks to Dale Lewis, for not only being a wonderful advisor, but for also taking the time to get to know his staff on a personal level and becoming a great friend!
